Sussex Humanities Lab Inaugural Lecture

Caroline Bassett, David Berry, Tim Hitchcock, Sally Jane Norman, Rachel Thomson and all the Sussex Humanities Lab research team warmly invite you to our official opening event in London.

Thursday, 3 December 2015
From 18:30 to 21:30
The RSA
8 John Adams Street
London WC2N 6EZ

View Map

Places are free but limited please register to RSVP

Guest Speakers
Lorna Hughes, Professor of Digital Humanities, University of Glasgow;
Jonathan Sterne, James McGill Chair in Culture and Technology, McGill University, Montreal
Respondents and Chair: Members of the Sussex Humanities Lab (SHL)

The Sussex Humanities Lab is dedicated to developing and expanding research into how digital technologies are shaping our culture and society, as well as the way we go about our research. The lab draws on expertise from diverse fields including philosophy and information technology, history and archaeology, media and communications, music and performance technology, and sociology, to ask questions which have always been at the heart of the humanities.

We look forward to seeing you there.

The Sussex Humanities Lab team
Caroline Bassett, Professor of Media and Communications (Director)
David Berry, Reader in Media and Communication (Co-Director)
Tim Hitchcock, Professor of Digital History (Co-Director)
Sally Jane Norman, Professor of Performance Technologies (Co-Director)
Rachel Thomson, Professor of Childhood and Youth Studies (Co-Director)
James Baker, Liam Berriman, Chris Kiefer, Ben Roberts, Alban Webb, Sharon Webb
(Lecturers in Digital Humanities)
Alice Eldridge, Beatrice Fazi, Ben Jackson, Jack Pay, Andrew Robertson, Julie Weeds, Simon Wibberley
(Research Fellows in Digital Humanities)
Amelia Wakeford (Project Manager)

ATTEND EVENT